"Coming together is beginning, staying together is process and working together is success."

Henry Ford

A yearbook, as the name suggests, is a compilation of yearly events. The pages of this yearbook are filled with memories of the academic year; memories which are now preserved and protected by the pages of this fine book.

Our yearbook committee must be commended for their relentless commitment and devotion. They have endured lengthy meetings, numerous technological difficulties, and the constant strain of working to meet deadlines in order to produce this publication for you. The dedicated work of this small committee, is exemplified in the above noted words of Henry Ford and also in our school motto: "Small enough to know you, large enough to serve you."

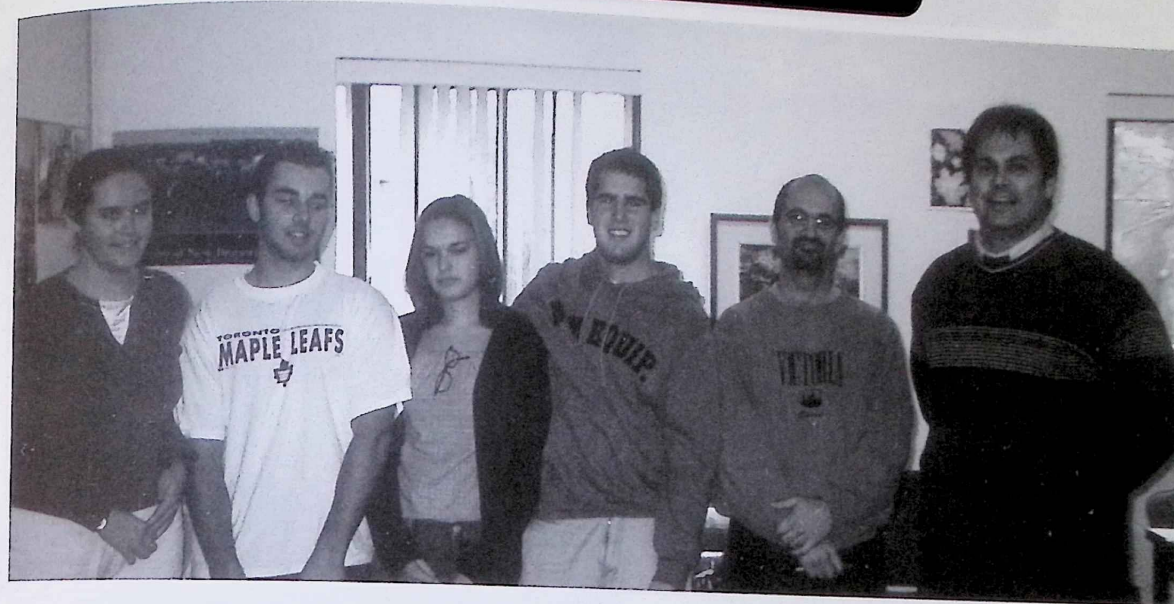

It is my sincere hope that when you open this yearbook in the years and decades to ahead, you find yourself reflecting, rejoicing and repeatedly thanking the yearbook committee for their exemplary efforts.

I would like to begin by thanking the whole school; staff, students and all for their guidance and support. Thank you - all of you.

Many like to compare our school to a family - which we are. We have "parents", "trouble-makers", "straight - A - students", "punk rockers", or whatever you would like to consider yourself. Although we are all very different, we all attend the same assemblies, cheer for our CRUSADERS, make fools of ourselves in the hallways (one time or another), and we party hard together! For four years, we spend nearly six and a half hours, five days a week, for three-quarters of a year, together. Now that's a family. I would like to think that twenty years from now, you will remember your years at Char-Lan with a smile on your face. I hope you remember being a "minor niner" or having a crush on the hottest senior. I hope you remember the teachers you hated and loved most. I hope you remember those who worked or helped out at the school. I would especially hope that you remember the friends you made, the foreign exchange students, the "preps", or maybe you were a "jock", one of the "smokers" or perhaps friends with the "brains". Whatever group(s) you were part of, I hope you had a blast! Well...catch ya later man.

Message

Absent: Katie Ross, Jaime Paradis, Albert Renaud

If I have learned nothing else this year, I have learned that to be able to trust and rely on your friends is much more important than any deadline. Being the yearbook editor has definitely, without a doubt, been one of the hardest things I have tackled. There were many times I regretted taking on such a huge responsibility, but luckily I have a wonderful group of friends who put up with my child-like temper tantrums and my psychotic rants that seemed to go on forever. So I would like to take the time to thank Stacy, Josee, Megan and her evil twin Megan (wink), Katie, Jamie, Vickie, Albert, and Kylie - even though she wasn't officially on the Yearbook Committee. I would also like to thank Mr. Forgarty, Mr. Trasuk, Ms. Buttle, Mr. Hummell, Corey Kalsi, and the three wonderful secretaries that bless our school, who guided us through the rough spots and praised us in our moments of success. I hope that you will enjoy this yearbook and have as many memories as we have had. To the graduating class; may the future bring you happiness and dreams fulfilled. To the rest of Char-Lan's population; may you have the best time in this small country school - I know I have.

Thanks to all who have made this yearbook a success!

A Well-Deserved Tribute

The Yearbook Committee would like to extend this "thank-you" to two teachers who have affected the Char-Lan community in ways they will never know. It is with a heavy heart that we say farewell and wish them happiness in their retirement. Kylie Cumming, an OAC student, has lent her incredible writing talents to us to articulate how much we will miss them.

Mr. Johns and Mr. Blackadder: A Tribute

...I recall back to yesteryears, actually Grade Eight...It was with great excitement and anticipation that my friends and I attended the Grade Eight Orientation Night at Char-Lan D.H.S. Later that evening, when refreshments were being served, I noticed my father talking enthusiastically to a man in a white lab coat. On the trip home, my father asked, eyes shining bright, "Did you talk to Mr. Johns?"

"Mr. Johns?" I inquired.

"Mr. Johns. He was my favourite teacher when I was a Char-Lan student. Visions of cavemen and woolly mammoths sprang to mind. As the year passed, I soon discovered why Mr. Johns was regarded in such high opinion. He makes an effort to talk to each and every person in the school, and he is truly interested in every single person as an individual. In all of his science classes, he uses imaginative techniques, such as "the little green men" in Grade Nine. Personal highlights from my experience in Grade Nine Science include the time when we distracted him for an entire period, wondering if one really could see a polar bear in a snowstorm. I also remember how he took time out from his lunch break, simply to explain balancing equations to me. However, Mr. Johns most famous attribute is his sense of humour. I remember when I told him the joke,

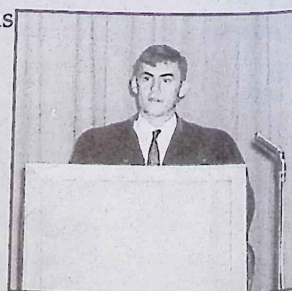

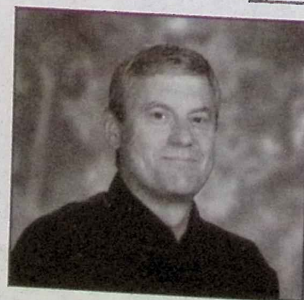

"What does Winne-the-Pooh and Jake-the-Ripper have in common? The same middle name." he roared with laughter while others simply groaned. His repartee of jokes and puns is as vast and endless as his collections of ties...When someone says "Oh...that's a Mr. Johns' joke", everyone knows exactly what they mean...

Mr. Blackadder is also one who is noted for his friendly manner and sense of humour. In one of his classes, one can simply listen to him for the length of the period and be captivated the entire time. Mr. Blackadder sets high standards for his students, thus enabling them to rise to the occasion. Each one of his students will tell you that they have emerged from his classes with noticeable improvements in English. Mr. Blackadder also contributes greatly to the culture and heritage of Char-Lan, being a talented bagpiper. Posters of two icons in Glengarry County: The Glengarry Pipe Band and the Glengarry Highland Games adorn his classroom walls. Mr. Blackadder is also a devoted Cross-Country and Track and Field coach. I felt very fortunate to have competed on the Char-Lan Track and Field Team for three years, under his direction. Through his encouragement and devotion to the team, his athletes aspired to great things, including several EOSSAAs and OFSAAs.

I remember it was a highlight in Char-Lan gossip when Mr. Blackadder grew a mustache. This "mustache saga" continued for at least two years...

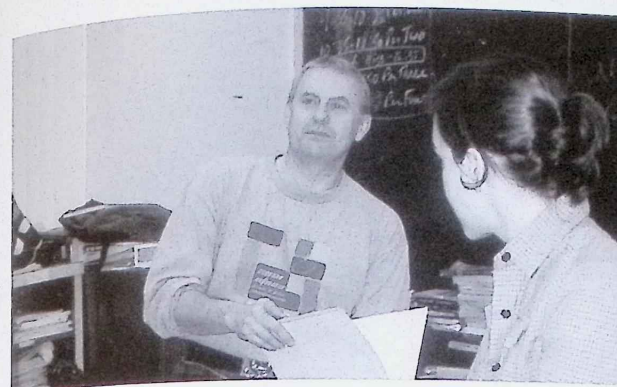

The Yearbook Committee, and all of Char-Lan, would like to wish these two incredible individuals great and happy times in their retirement and hope they will come back to visit for years to come.

Salut!

Welcome to High School Honey!

This student thought twice before eating his hot dog. He had heard the legend of the bloody water they had used to cook the hotdogs with.

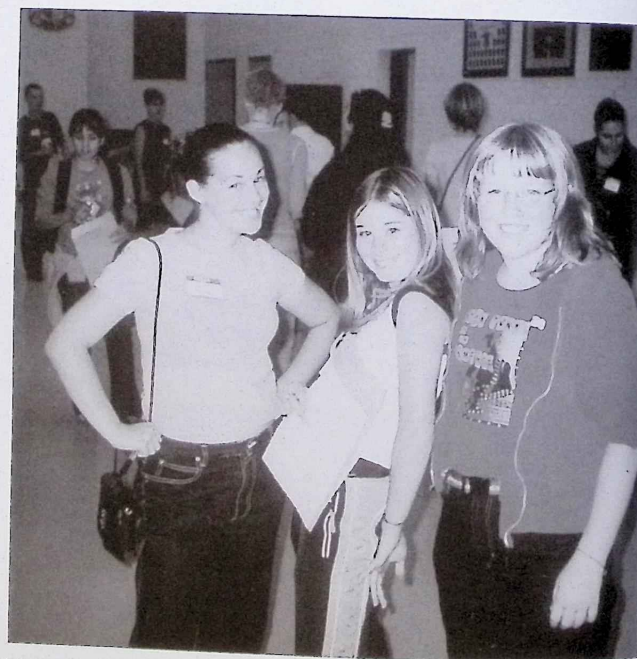

Every year we are glad to see the next batch of to be Char-lan graduates. This year we were especially excited. Mr. Oathwite was happy to be their servant for the day.

As usual our Grade 9 BBQ was a great success! We persuaded all the grade 9s who attended to enrolle in our quint little school. After the BBQ we knew that we were in one of the best years to be at Char-Lan. Theses students will become part of Char-Lan's tradition of excellence. Thanks for all those who helped in making this so successful.

After a few complaints about the food, Mr. Hummell took over as chef.

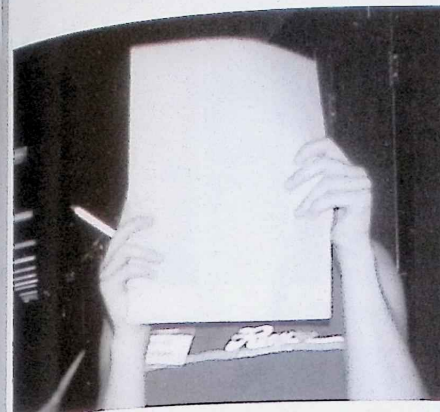

In high school they told me I could be anything including Britney Spears. "Who do I talk to about signing a contract?"

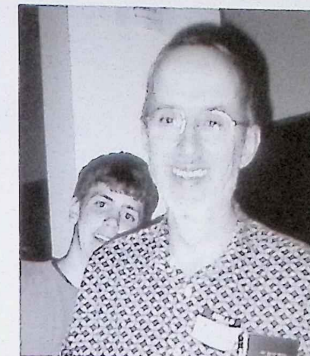

Macho, macho men!

Carnival Week

Hawaiian Day

Carnival Week was a Great Success with wonderful trips planned, including a skiing trip, a hip hop workshop and a shopping/movie trip to Ottawa.

The theme days were original and thoughtout, including some of the most wacky costumes that were ever seen. Also the tap room challenges at lunch were incredibly enjoyable as seen in these pictures.

Our Three Coaches: Mr. O'Farrell, Mr. Ferguson, Mr. Hummell

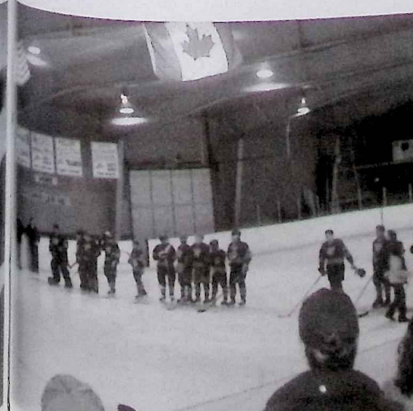

Does this helmet make my head look fat?

Read it and Weep!

Our Hockey team was one to be proud of, and the school was out there to support each and every player. Our mascot rallied the crowd with her trusty sword and "newly" found helmet. Good Job Boys! We can't wait until next year's game!

Ain't It Great?

The Dining Room At Char-Lan

The Cafeteria was aglow with the great performances of the Char-Lan actors

*The Yearbook Committee would like to thank Christie
Van der Burg for writing such a beautiful memoir of the play.*

I remember walking into the school for early morning practices, my book bag dragging behind, hair a mess, eyes still only half open. Looking up at the empty stage, it took a generous imagination to picture our play actually taking place here. Yet with a lot of effort and hard work, things finally began to come together. An appropriate dining room table used for the centre piece of our play was finally found, the set was built and painted, and in the end our stage turned out to be quite impressive.

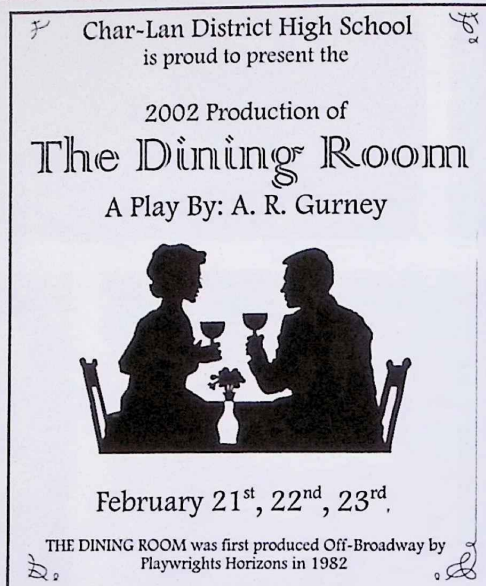

The night before I practically cried myself to sleep. My head was full of different horror stories; no one would come, we were all going to forget our lines, the audience would hate it, etc... Yet our three nights of fame turned out to be a success. We actually had an audience to perform to. Doug remembered to take out his retainer and Dave didn't waista any time back stage chewing on his gum, which he was sure would keep that fake mustache glued to his face.

The Cast of "The Dining Room"

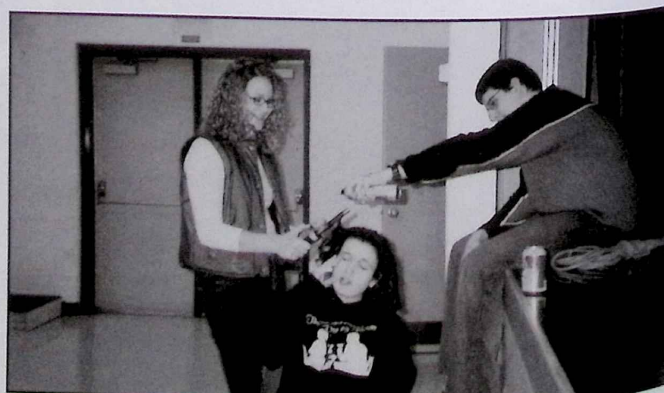

I would like to thank Mr. Hummell and Mr. Oathwaite, the teachers and students for all their support throughout the making of the play, the cast and crew for doing such an amazing job, and to Miss Sinclair. We would not have been able to do it without her.

Christie Van der Burg

A Program From the Play

While taking out final bow, it was hard to believe that it was all over. Something that seemed once so far away was now finished. It was a very emotional scene back stage as we exchanged congratulatory hugs. Some were crying, some were laughing and some smiling as Mikey jumped around all over the place as usual. Putting this play together is a memory we will all cherish for a very long time. As I was walking off the stage after it was done, the only thing I wanted to do was go back and start it all over again.

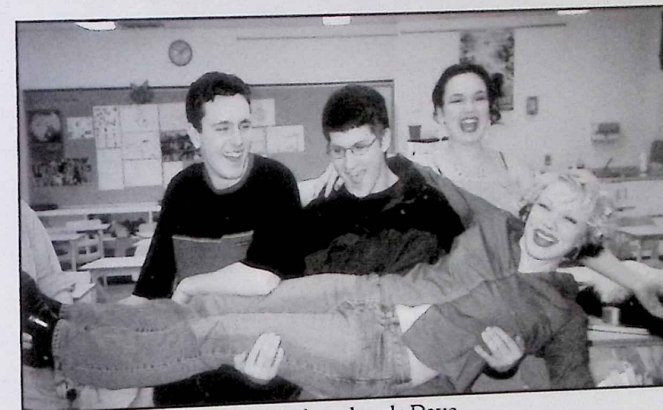

"Um, that's my eye!"

"Well hello darling, thank you for coming."

"I don't even like dancing school!"

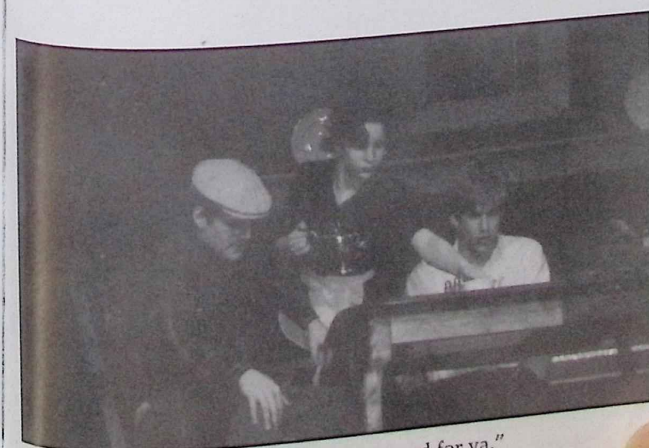

Watch those hands Dave.

Get her AWAY from me!

"Hey Shame, are the growing?"

"Eat your greens, they're good for ya."

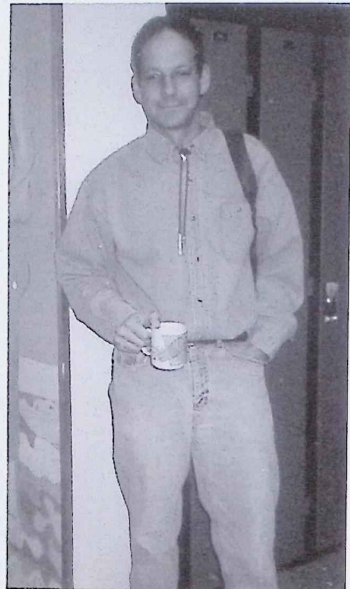

The Cast and Crew!

Yearbook Week

Where are my fluffy darlings?

The Wild Wild West...

...Maybe just a little too wild.

Home, home on the range!

If I trade these in, will I get a discount?

What do you mean we were supposed to dress up today?

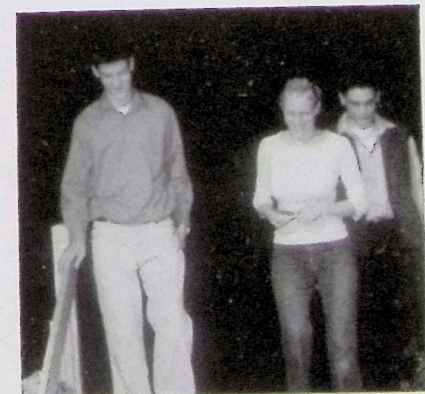

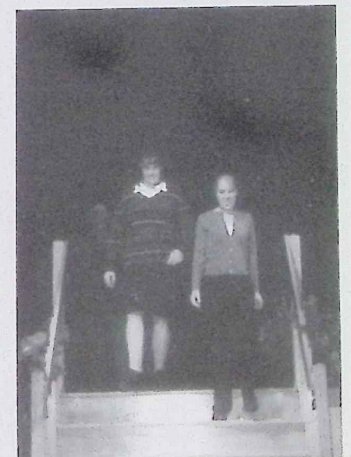

I don't want to be here.

"Yearbook Week" was a success. The student population showed their school spirit and made us proud to be on the Yearbook Committee. Cowboy day had everyone showing their "cowboy inside" and slipper day was a hit.

We would like to thank everyone who made this week possible.

Graduation Treasures

The years were great,
We had a blast,
It made us all remember our past.
We shared our memories,
Gained new thoughts,
Received our diplomas,
Reached the top.
Until this day,
Us few friends,
Thought our life together would end.
So this summer we'll keep in touch,
Maybe soon we'll have lunch.
The simple things that make our school great,
Will always be remembered, it's our fate.
I will miss you,
Go live your life,
Just remember ours is nice.
Grades nine through twelve,
Made us close,
About our school, we deserve to boast.
Congratulations, on your victory!
Today we graduate,
You and me.

Ashely Kenny ~ grade nine

GR. 11 PARENTING

Do you ever wonder why children do and say certain things? Well, if you do, this is a fun and interesting class to learn about children. Starting from pre-natal care you go through the stages of development of a child.

In parenting, you will learn how a child grows physically, intellectually, emotionally and socially. Every day is a new learning experience.

The projects you will encounter will be things like food labs, stuffed teddy bears and interaction with young children. You will spend three weeks with the JK/K children explaining their world.

The class will give you the opportunity to work with others, express your opinions and experience new and interesting projects. You will develop a strong knowledge of child care and the responsibilities it holds. Your outlook on young individuals becomes stronger and your understanding greater.

Excerpt from the "Crusader News"

GRADE 9 TECHNOLOGY PROGRAM UNIQUE

For the fourth year, students entering grade 9 at Char-Lan in the fall of 2002 will have a great experience. The grade 9 Integrated Technology course offers students a chance to learn the newest computer, design, manufacturing and construction techniques. At the same time, students explore business concepts, run a mini-company and reap profit from the sale of their student-operated venture product.

Music is the Brandy of the Damned

It is passed indiscriminately across race, class and gender lines. It feeds power, allowing the forcible suppression of opposition, and the greed that has enveloped our society. I write messages on money. They are letters that no one will destroy. I hope somebody will find my messages, someday, when they really need them. Like I did.

I can no longer remember a time when I had what was regarded as normal and acceptable behavioural controls. I cannot remember when I started feeling like this.

The dark is deep and silence is comforting, but I long to dig my toes into the sand, once again, and feel freedom. Where the ocean looks like a thousands diamonds in the wind. A place where physical warmth is mandatory and mental ease is less than easy to obtain. Easy to hold hostage. Where I can pretend to be weightless, and for at least one moment I would be happy, h-a-p-p-y.

Get out of my head because I don't need this. Why didn't I see this coming? I wipe off my face; the light is brighter this time. Everything is blasphemy. My hair is standing straight up and it hurts to see. This is not the way I would have pictured me. I can't control my shakes. How the hell did I get here? Something about this is so very wrong; I have to laugh out loud. I wish I didn't like it. Is it a dream or a memory?

This place is not what I expected. It is different. Every day is inevitable succession of events, routines, supernaturally or by necessity, I am forced to stay here. Any promptness of action on my behalf results in punishment and most certainly a return into darkness.

I do remember how I became like this. It was the money. It was the month-long benders, the drunken struggles and the visits to the liquor store. It was the temporary state of mind emphasising crime and prevailing the quality of sensibility. It was the money, the greed, and the quiet little hijacking on the way to the check-out counter. It was a federal crime. It was the addiction. It was the money, all the money. It was the sex.

It was the sex and the smell of summer.

I sometimes have composure of the face in disturbing situations. I feel the hate rise up in me. I kneel down and clear the ground of leaves, but there are no leaves to see. It is a weakness. Anger is a tool, a device, a saviour. But I can't control my behaviour. When the emotion overcomes me I wander where no one can see. Then inside I wait and bleed.

I was taken during the summer. For voicing my opinion I have become incarcerated. It was always dark now; the comfort of a cold and barren cell seems like a luxury oh man juxtaposed with my hole in the floor. Free of light, but not quite hell. I am not well. Where I am there are no crowds in the street and no children playing the park. There's no sun in my own summer.

If I hadn't made me, I would have been made somehow. If I hadn't assembled myself, I'm sure, I would have fallen apart by now. If only for my own health, I made myself. Now look where it got me. I have sinned by making up my mind. It is the gunslingers in red suspenders. The white collars are doing the crime. Yet it is I who is doing the time.

It is me who is here and they who are not. The money did me no good; it was, as they say, a means to no end. There is no lack of profoundness and significance in this; I can't control my thoughts and I don't know what I am saying.

It takes my breath away. Get out of my head because I don't need this. Why didn't I see this coming? I wipe off my face; the light is brighter this time. Everything is blasphemy. My hair is standing straight up and it hurts to see. This is not the way I would have pictured me. I can't control my shakes. How the hell did I get here? Something about this is so very wrong; I have to laugh out loud. I wish I didn't like it. Is it a dream or a memory?

I am still here in the dark. My messages have not been burned and destroyed. No one has found them. I am lonely. The blood from my beatings keep my inner beast alive. I wish for freedom. I wish for one moment of happiness. I wish I could love. My appetite for love is now a hunger pain. It, like my anger, my hate and my shakes, cannot be controlled and cannot be helped.

Prison is hell and I wish you were here.

Similarities to known music lyrics are not coincidence, hence the title. The following songs were sources of inspiration:

"Wait and Bleed"

"I Wish You Were Here"

"My Own Summer"

The Listener and My Best Friend

The listener sits still and doesn't say a word, their breathing is so soft and quiet, like a feather floating in a warm summer's breeze.

The listener every so often will tell you something in the way they look at you. Their sparkling, glistening eyes are always looking at you with sympathy and reassurance that it is alright to cry.

The listener never takes sides or speaks out of turn, they just sit there and take everything in. Never questioning your motives for feeling the way that you do, just accepting your reasons for what they are.

The listener is my best friend, the one that comforts me in my time of need and encourages me when my self-esteem has been hurt by others. The one that never judges me for my actions or scolds me for not thinking things through.

My best friend is like a breath of fresh air when you have been indoors all day, and is soothing music in my head that eases me back to sleep after a nightmare.

This best friend has been there with me through every sticky situation I have encountered in my life, but also through all the joys I have experienced. My best friend is the first person I see in the morning, and the last person I see when

I Wanted Her to Hurt

The good graces that had once been bestowed upon my loveless soul vanished without a trace. I watched the clouds scurry across the sky as the last petal dropped from the stubborn rose bush in my front yard. I watched the sky lighten as it touched the horizon, so silently, so softly I couldn't tell where the sky or ground began. My heart beat in time with the dropping rain.

I was born in an alley among the garbage and filth of a world grown so cold it could no longer feel. My mother was a prostitute, a whore, and had decided to dispose of me the only way her demented mind could conceive: she put me in the trash so I would be forgotten like yesterday's paper. She stood up, walked away and started her half-a-pack habit, followed by her skin puncturing of liquid euphoria. I was alone.

Every autumn my body seemed to crave a coma-like stillness. My blood would slow and my eyes would become heavy with dreams I had yet to dream. I would sit there and breathe, just breathe to make a sound, a sound of life. As my houseplants withered and died, I sat there and drank my Crystal Light.

There were times where I wished I were far away from the stubborn rose bush and dreary afternoon. It wasn't as if I could actually find the road I had taken but I knew it was out there, even if the forest animals had eaten my breadcrumbs. I used to wish my world of total chaos and psychotic thinking would somehow collapse and blow away, like ashes from a fire. Wish as I may, I was never able to start those flames. Beyond the panes of glass that let the sun into my life I could feel something was wrong. It gripped at my chest and crushed my lungs. I just wish I had known what it was.

I would sit in the Church of Our Lady of the Sacraments and feel the guilt seep up from my soul. Every Catholic has this type of guilt bred into them. It's a quiet guilt that starts in your toes and works its way up your legs until it closes off your heart and blinds you, until the world becomes distorted with your self-pitied delusions. I would fill myself with it because I hated my mother. I hated her. In my childish mind I couldn't come to terms with what she had done. I wished her dead. I had no idea where she was living the rest of her pitiful, disgusting existence, but I wished her every harm I could think of. I wanted her to hurt.

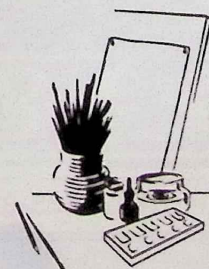

So I sighed my soul out into the dreary afternoon. I stood in the rain and blinked profusely as it punctured my shield. Down the road there used to live a very nice couple. The husband could speak three different languages and the wife was a devoted mother. The road was positioned inbetween a 400 series highway and the CN railroad. The wife's sister had jumped out in front of an on-coming train that sped down the tracks behind their house. They moved away soon after because the wife couldn't stay in the same house where her sister had spent her last moments. I wondered if my mother felt my birth signified her own suicide, her 'breath stealer'. Maybe I wasn't so different from the speeding train that had stopped the life force of that girl. Maybe I was the green-eyed monster on the side of the road at night. I still wanted her to hurt.

Teresa Renaud ~ OAC

I go to bed every single day of my life.

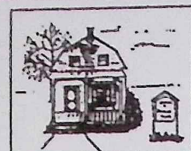

My best friend is the reflection I see in the mirror, I have finally realized my best friend through everything and anything, will always be me.

The evening was superb as all the graduates were ushered into the cafeteria, led by Piper Megan McIntosh. The Concert Band, led by Mr. Goodbun, played O Canada as everyone sang along. We were flooded with messages of wisdom from Art Buckland, Donna MacGillis, and finally our principal Mr. Hummell. As each graduate received their diploma, you could see the pride rush through their veins. A multitude of bursaries and awards were handed out to deserving students and we all stood in awe of the wonderful decorations that filled the cafeteria and surrounding areas with a lustre of pleasure. Calla Humphries supplied us with a wonderful speech and Mr. Johns, although at times tongue-tied, was a gracious and most generous MC. Congratulations Grads! You have done a wonderful, marvelous JOB!

Valedictorian

Class of 2001-2002
Valedictorian, Calla
Humphries

We are all fortunate to have our first teachers here with us this evening. Moms and dads, you were the wind beneath our wings. You cheered for us in times of triumph, and picked us up when we'd forgotten how to fly. The teenage years can be a tumultuous time but being a Crusader made the transition a whole lot easier.

I feel truly blessed to have know you all and to have shared this special time of our lives together. Regardless of the many different directions we take in the years to come, we have an everlasting bond that can't be broken. We have to promise one another that we will always share a memory of our days here at Char-Lan in passing because "old friends are the best friends."

Graduates, for all you've accomplished, for all you are, and all you will be...Congratulations. Ladies and gentlemen, nothing gives me more pleasure than to present to you, the class of 2002!

Mr. Johns' Tribute Day

On Thursday, June 13, 2002, almost every student and staff member proudly donned their wackiest, tackiest ties to honour one of Char-Lan's finest, Mr. Johns. A beautiful quilt, featuring ties donated by the teachers, was created by Mrs. Larkin and presented to the re"tie"ring Physics enthusiast. The back had been signed by every student. A scrapbook created by Teresa Renaud was inscribed with many seniors' memories and contained a large collection of corny jokes. There was a special "choir meeting" in the music room at lunch, where cake was eaten, gifts given, and more than a few tears were shed. Some of the choir's classics were dragged out and sung, even though "Carol of The Bells" was a little out of season.

A time to honour Mr. Johns

Band

After extensive fundraising, including citrus fruit sales, yard and bake sales, car washes, and a raffle, the Char-Lan Concert Band journeyed to Halifax, Nova Scotia for the Atlantic Music Festival. The five day trip included lots of shopping and a visit to Peggy's Cove. They were adjudicated by a professional judge. All band members agreed that the trip was well worth the 16 hour bus ride.

Many people have since speculated what had really happened 'One time on the band trip...'

Choir

The choir had another great year under the direction of choirmaster Mr. Johns. They performed at both the school concerts. At the Spring Recital, Teresa Renaud and Josee Giroux prepared a touching tribute to Mr. Johns, and sang a duet in his honour.

The choir finished the year with a surprise retirement party for Mr. Johns. We will sincerely miss him in the years to come.

Choir members: Samantha Martin, Cassandra Flipsen, Kathleen Pedell, Kayla Hallett, Laura Lavalley, Margaret Cattanch, Laura Bicknell, Megan McIntosh, Josee Giroux, Teresa Renaud, Mr. Johns (conductor)

The yearbook committee would like to thank all three secretaries, who are an inspiration to all, Mr. Goodbun, for your continued support, the graduating class; you are the best! and finally Corey Kalsi. Without him this yearbook would not have been possible and through his diligence, we have completed yet another instalment in the continuing Char-Lan saga. Thank you Corey, you are one in a million.

Sincerely,
Helen Keller (a.k.a Teresa Renaud)
